

African Fusion (AF) aims to provide up-to-date insight into welding technology and the welding industry in southern Africa. Published in March, July and November the printed magazine is posted with MechChem Africa (MCA).

AF is split into three sections.

1. The opening pages deal with SAIW news and related events. As the custodian of welding standards and technology in the region, this section strives to promote best practices and standards, such as ISO 3834 – Quality Requirements for Fusion Welding of Metallic Materials.
2. The central section of the magazine includes one or two white or technical papers, which are vetted by the SAIW technical staff and usually sourced from IIW International conferences or through the Institute from local welding researchers.
3. The third and main section of magazine features stories from the southern African welding and fabrication industry and its supplier base. Here, we strive for original and technically rich content based on site and company visits and interviews.
